Realtor Suburb Snapshot Reports

A source, fact, claim, approval, export, and handoff checklist for every suburb snapshot.

Inside this document

- 01 Source and number check
- 02 Delivery handoff
- 03 Stop and verify

Source and number check

- Record the source name, exact URL, reporting period, geography, access date, and metric definition for every number used.
- Recalculate totals and comparisons; do not mix median with average, asking with sale price, or listings with settled sales.
- Check suburb boundaries, property types, dates, agent details, links, and calls to action against the brief.
- Label stale, missing, estimated, incomplete, or conflicting data instead of filling gaps from memory or AI output.

Delivery handoff

- Check every AI-written line; remove valuations, forecasts, guarantees, yield advice, investment advice, and future-performance claims.
- Record named approval for facts, branding, links, captions, and channel. Silence is not approval.
- Export the approved formats, test every link, and name files with the suburb and reporting date.
- Send the final snapshot, source log, email intro, social captions, approval record, and next refresh date together.
- Preserve the source evidence and approved files. Do not publish for the agent unless that service is separately agreed and approved.

Stop and verify

- A source conflicts with another source or a number cannot be reproduced.
- The requested wording sounds like a prediction, valuation, guarantee, or unsupported performance claim.
- The client asks to remove source context or the approval owner is unclear.
